Summary

- Since 2012, the majority of LACCD colleges have been in a nearly-continuous accreditation cycle of visits > reports > follow-up reports > visits
- The ESC has been in continuous accreditation support mode during the same period, providing colleges with District-level responses and self-study narrative
- Two thirds of LACCD colleges lost time in the move to Districtwide visits. At the same time, ACCJC revised reporting standards and self-study requirements
- Eight out of nine LACCD colleges have no recommendations; one college has an outstanding fiscal recommendation, which should be resolved this Spring
- There have been no District recommendations since 2013
- The 2016 reporting cycle begins with a clean slate
- Colleges and the District office are on track for timelines and maximizing all available resources. Progress is sustained, and ongoing.
